Own History. Polish this downtown gem! It is waiting for you to bring it back to life. Beautiful etched glass windows, cove molding, high ceilings, lovely banister and carved newell post, french doors between the Drawing Room and the Library, gorgeous windows in the dining room, and the list of historic detail goes on and on! And what provenance, this is one of the oldest houses on South St., ready to be brought back to life. Local lore has it that Richard Power, designer of the Halifax Public Gardens, had his hand in creating the rear terraced garden. The house is neatly tucked to one side of the large lot, a long SW side veranda allows you to sit out and enjoy the evening sun, and a large rear deck has beautiful light and overlooks the magical garden. This four-bedroom beauty has an easy, comfortable flow, lots of natural light, and access to outside from the front, back, and side as well a walkout from the basement. This old house has a lot of life left in it and is waiting to shine again. [6150south dot com]
